This table presents BEA's statistics for personal transfers sent by the foreign-born population resident in the United States to households abroad for 1992:I-1998:IV. Personal transfers consist of all current transfers in cash or in kind made by resident households to nonresident households. These statistics, which are sometimes referred to as "remittances," are a component of secondary income payments in table 1.1, line 16, of the U.S. International Transactions Accounts (ITAs). For statistics beginning with 1999, see table 5.1, line 9, of the ITAs.

For more information about the methodology for estimating personal transfers, see "Annual Revision of the U.S. International Accounts, 1991-2004," Survey of Current Business (July 2005): 64-66 and "Annual Revision of the U.S. International Transactions Accounts," Survey of Current Business (July 2012): 38-39.
